

Stacie Young, Director
The Preservation Compact

As Director of The Preservation Compact, Young convenes a diverse group of stakeholders to build support for, and to develop and implement, policies and programs related to the preservation of affordable rental housing.

Under her leadership, the Compact helped expand dollars for rental retrofits, drive building code relief, create an innovative property tax relief incentive, and launch an innovative $34 million fund to encourage the creation of affordable rental units in high cost markets. She also led efforts to develop a $48 million loan pool to finance distressed 1-4 unit buildings, and a separate $5 million CDFI partnership to improve 1-4 unit buildings.

Prior to her work with the Compact, Young served in the City of Chicago's Office of the Mayor to coordinate affordable housing activity among city departments, and at the Chicago Department of Housing as the Director of Policy. She also worked on fair housing issues for seven years in the south suburbs of Chicago.

Young currently serves on the boards of BPI Chicago and Housing Choice Partners. She completed her undergraduate degree at Northwestern University, and received her Masters in Public Policy from the Harris School at the University of Chicago.
